Feeling Blue? It's Time for an Act of Kindness

If life is getting you down, and you're wondering what the point of all the madness is, it might be time for a quick fix. A sure way to change negative feelings is to set your sights on somebody else.

Pick a person and make him/her the recipient of a random act of kindness. Small acts often work wonders. Pay a compliment, offer help to someone struggling with some work, or give an inexpensive gift or treat. You'll lift your own spirits as well as the other person's.

How to Set Reasonable Goals

Setting goals is important, but setting good goals is what really counts. What is a good goal? A good goal has several definable characteristics:

- It's specifically focused.
 - It's neither too hard, nor too easy.
 - It's shared and agreed upon with others who will be working on it.
 - It's written down and visualized.
- Have you asked your child what their goal is for their second trimester?

New Year's Resolutions

As the new year begins you may want to consider some new year's resolutions to enhance your children's education.

1. Attendance and prompt arrival to school.
2. Homework done daily and turned in on time.
3. Read daily and record on your log.
4. Eat healthy and get a good night sleep.
5. Be kind to others.
6. Work on your student goal everyday for 10 minutes.

Reminders:

- * Our office hours are from 7:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
- * Students are not to arrive at school prior to 15 minutes before they are going to attend class unless they are having breakfast on campus.

Child Safety

Parents, your children's safety starts with you. Like any other area of their life, they must be trained and made aware. Talking to children about certain dangers makes many adults uneasy. By educating your children you give them confidence because they will know right from wrong and they'll know how to respond.

There are three basic rules: "Say No", "Get Away", and "Tell Someone". These three basics can be applied to almost any situation your child may encounter. Encourage your children to listen to their intuition. Explain that intuition is the feeling they get inside that tells them something's wrong. Then, when they think something isn't right, they can say no, get away, and tell someone.

Sixteen Tips for Being Effective with People

1. To have a friend, you must be one.
2. Don't try to impress others. Let them impress you.
3. People hunger to be needed, wanted, and loved. Help create these feelings in others.
4. Be kind to people. You can't always love them, but you can be kind to them.
5. Learn to like yourself. Others will respond to you the way that you respond to yourself.
6. Be enthusiastic. Nothing significant was ever achieved without enthusiasm.
7. Be positive. Positive people attract others; negative people repel others.
8. Do things to make people feel important. Write a letter, give a compliment, say thank you. Praise, encourage, support, and cooperate.
9. Call a person by name. Use people's names often in conversation.
10. Avoid arguments.
11. Be a good listener. The way you listen has a greater effect on others than the way you talk.
12. Unless you can say something worthy about a person, say nothing.
13. Help people like themselves. The greatest compliment someone can give you is to say, "I like myself better when I'm with you."
14. If you're going to make fun of someone, make sure it's yourself.
15. Communicate cheerfulness. Smile, be pleasant, talk about the brighter things in life.
16. Be genuinely interested in others. Get them to talk about themselves, ask for their opinions, ideas, and viewpoints.

Working Together for School Success

Do Your Best! Reach Your Goal!

SHORT NOTES

Is my child over-scheduled?

Take a moment to review your youngster's after-school schedule together. While there's no magic number of activities that's right for every child, consider whether she has enough time to do homework and enjoy downtime. If one or more days each week are jam-packed, think about having her drop an activity.

School supply inventory

The year is halfway over! Your youngster's school supplies may be running low, so check if he needs more pencils, paper, or calculator batteries. You might also ask his teacher about shared items like tissues or glue. Note: Contact the school counselor if you need assistance in getting supplies for your child.

Good handwriting matters

Although your youngster will type more of her work as she gets older, it's still important for her written assignments to be legible. Also, she will be less apt to make math mistakes if she writes numbers clearly. Encourage her to take pride in completing her work neatly.

Worth quoting

"I know nothing in the world that has as much power as a word. Sometimes I write one, and I look at it until it begins to shine." Emily Dickinson

JUST FOR FUN

Q: What do you call a boomerang that doesn't work?

A: Lost.

Motivated to learn

What's the best way to keep your child inspired to learn? Help him learn to motivate himself! Raise a self-motivated youngster with this advice.

Point to the future

Your youngster may feel more motivated to learn something if he understands how it will be important later. Tell him about ways you use school subjects like math and writing at work. You might explain how you count the money in your cash register and compare it to sales receipts when your shift ends. Or show him advertisements that you helped to write or design.

Move on from mistakes

There are two ways to react to mistakes: Feel discouraged, or get motivated. Encourage your child to look at a mistake as an opportunity to succeed next time. If he made careless errors on a report, for example, he could proofread papers more carefully in the future (take a break before proofing, read backward).

Celebrate hard work

Have your youngster find natural motivators when he is faced with a big job. For instance, he may plan to read a new mystery he's been looking forward to after finishing a challenging book for school. Or you might let him organize a fun family activity that's related to his science project—perhaps a visit to a cavern if his experiment involves minerals.♥

Winter workouts

No matter what the weather, your family can stay active this winter. Try these ideas.

Sticky catch. Use gloves for more than keeping warm. Get Velcro circles with sticky backs (available at craft stores), a Wiffle ball, and a pair of knit gloves. Stick Velcro pieces all over the Wiffle ball. Each person wears one glove, leaving one hand free to throw. Go outside for a game of catch!

Fitness hunt. Ask each family member to draw and label pictures of physical activities (making snow angels, doing forward rolls). Hide the drawings, and race around trying to find them. When you spot one, do the activity five times. Then, hide that picture for someone else to find.♥

Speak out about bullying

It can take courage for your youngster to ask for help when she or a classmate is bullied. Here are ways to reassure her that it's okay to speak up.

To start a conversation... "What have you heard in school about bullying?" Simply opening the lines of communication may make your child feel comfortable coming to you if she witnesses bullying or is a victim of it herself. If she doesn't have much to say, you could talk about what you've heard or relate situations you encountered as a youngster.

If she is bullied...
 "I'm glad you told me. Let's decide how I can support you." Children who are bullied may feel helpless. Discuss options so your youngster feels more in control. Would she be okay with your talking to her teacher? Does she want to meet with the school counselor?

When a classmate is bullied... "What could you do to help?" Together, brainstorm ideas. Have her think about where the bullying takes place. She might ask the child to play with her at recess or sit with her on the bus or at lunch. Or she could walk with her classmate to tell an adult about what happened.♥

ACTIVITY CORNER

Think like a historian

Does your child know that history isn't just something that happened a long time ago? In fact, history is made every day. Let him be a historian with this activity.

Find and document

Have him pay attention to history-making events like "firsts" (his little brother's first steps), unusual occurrences (the decade's biggest snowfall), or significant changes (moving to a new house). Encourage him to document each event by writing about it or making audio or video recordings.

Analyze and predict

Like a historian, he should analyze why the event is important and what we might learn from it. He might say, "We normally get a dusting of snow in our state, but this week we got six inches," and "Now we know how snow drifts when the wind blows."

Idea: Let your youngster share his historical "document" with your family by reading aloud what he wrote or playing his recording.♥

PARENT TO PARENT

Teach me!

My son recently had what I thought was an unusual homework assignment. He had to study for a science quiz by teaching me the material, and I was supposed to write a sentence about what I learned.

It turned out to be interesting and helpful for both of us. I learned something new—about how sound travels better through solid objects than through liquids or gases—and my son earned a good grade on his quiz. We realized that talking it through in his own words was a good way for him to study. Also, I think it boosted his confidence to be able to teach me something I didn't know.

Now instead of asking what he learned in school, I sometimes have him teach it to me. If he struggles to explain it, that's a clue for him to go back and study more, then try again.♥

Q & A

Resolve to find family time

Q: Our New Year's resolution is to spend more time together as a family. Do you have any suggestions for getting our daughters on board?

A: Try letting each girl pick one special event a month for your family to do, such as a winter nature walk or a kite-flying festival. She could plan the activity and be in charge for the day. For ideas, look at calendars from the library or the parks and recreation department.

Also, look for ways to carve out small amounts of time. If you know you won't be able to eat dinner as a family, pick a different meal to eat together that day. Do errands cooperatively, and try to add an element of fun. For example, divide your grocery list in half, break into teams at the store, and see who can get their items first.

Finally, post family plans ("Pancake breakfast on Sunday," "Craft night at the library") to get your daughters excited about what's ahead.♥
